FIELD NOTE · ROOFING

45min

a day. Before any actual work.

That was a roofing client's morning. Five days a week. Every week.

THE RITUAL

Somebody copied data between 11 tools every morning before the first crew rolled out.

INDUSTRY	Roofing contractor
TIME SPENT	~45 min · daily · pre-dispatch
TOOLS TOUCHED	11
WORK PRODUCED	Zero. The day hadn't started.

THE STACK

The 11 places the job lived.

01	CRM	02	QuickBooks
03	Scheduling app	04	Google Sheets
05	Text messages	06	Dropbox
07	Website lead form	08	Voicemail
09	Paper invoices	10	Email inbox
11	The owner's head

Each one held a piece of the job. None of them talked to each other.

THE REPLACEMENT

One workflow. No code.

TOOL	n8n
COST	$24 / month
CODE WRITTEN	None
REPLACES	The 45-minute ritual

THE NEW MORNING

By 5 AM, the system has already done all of this.

04:30	Pulls last night's leads from the website & voicemail.
04:35	Assigns the closest crew by GPS.
04:45	Texts each customer their two-hour window.
07:30	Reminds the homeowner 30 minutes before arrival.
on site	Pushes field photos and notes back to the customer file.

GONE

Three things the owner doesn't do anymore.

01 · TIME

~~The 45 minutes.~~

02 · REVENUE

~~The dropped lead.~~

03 · OPERATIONS

~~The wrong-crew dispatch.~~

BUT

The morning ritual wasn't actually the biggest win.

The biggest win was finding the 11 places they were leaking money.

Some cost more than the lost 45 minutes ever did.

THREE OF THE ELEVEN

Where the money was actually going.

Late invoices.

~1 wk cash flow

Sat with the owner for 6–9 days before going out.

Reviews never asked for.

$4K – $12K / mo

Manual ask = forgotten ask. The system asks every time.

Margin per job.

unknown = risk

A guess instead of a number. Bids priced from gut feel.

Eight more on the full list.

THE MATH

One workflow.

$24 / mo

to plug eleven leaks a spreadsheet was hiding.
